

Local Design Internship

Seeking designers who are creative, fearless, and don't mind being busy.
Must play well with others.

Interns will assist in the process of publishing various journals. Tasks primarily focus on the creation and revision of advertisements, in-house promotional materials, page layout and other creative tasks. This is more of a production-based experience with little to no client interaction. It's a great opportunity to become acquainted with the fast-paced publishing world and to add professional work to your portfolio.

Knowledge of Adobe Creative Suite is important. Knowledge of Macs is helpful but not essential. Intern hours are flexible and can be worked around school and work schedules. Internships are unpaid and academic credit must be secured. Students must arrange for school credit through an advisor or professor.

If interested, contact Christina Schmid for details at careers@cva.edu

Be prepared to submit work samples, resume and cover letter
(Be sure to include a self-addressed envelope if you want samples to be returned).