

Internships for Teaching Artists

In the Twin Cities area, there is a wide variety of arts organizations looking for student interns to help teach or independently teach an equally wide variety of summer classes. Whether you are interested in fiber art, mosaic, digital photography, sculpture, graffiti, drawing, ceramics, or painting, if you want to get hands-on experience teaching, there are many options. Most of the teaching internships are paid. Some of them require a mix of teaching and learning about how to run a non-profit organization in the arts, including grant writing.
